WILL ENJOIN THE ANTS.

Texas Farmers Want None of Them in His Cotton Fields.

Houston, Texas, July 5.—Roder Clark, a prominent planter of Calhoun county, states that he will apply for an injunction to prevent the government experts bringing the Guatemalan ant into Texas as an insect enemy of the boll weevil.

It was stated recently that Government Entomologist Cook is no enroute with a large number of the ants, the first lot of which are to be taken to Victoria, in which county Mr. Clark has interests and which adjoins Calhoun county, where his plantation is located. Mr. Clark, as to the basis for his application, says:

"To my mind it is a serious and dangerous matter to transplant a South American insect or pest to South Texas because they will multiply very rapidly.

"One-half the cotton is picked by negroes who do not wear enough clothes to make a whole shirt, and the other half by barefooted children; this ant, to be of avail in destroying the weevil, must cover the entire field, and any one who has had a few of the native ants sting him will realize that it will be impossible to get the cotton picked.

Confederate Monument.

Nashville, Tenn. June 15.—At Centennial park today, the cornerstone of a monument to the private soldiers of the Confederacy, the tribute of the Nashville veterans to the enlisted men, was laid with impressive ceremonies under the direction of the masonic fraternity. The orator of the day was Hon. Henry Watterson; he said in part:

"We built this monument to valor. We built it to probity. We built it to glorious tribute to the men who fell by our side. We built it to the spirit of the dead Confederacy. We need not assert—we gave four years of proof—that we fought for liberty. Millions of us loved the union. Millions of us detested slavery. Millions of us denied the doctrine of secession. There is no smell of treason in our garments; no taint of corruption in our blood.

"Let us resolve that if another day of trial should overtake the reunited union, the north shall find the south a shield and a buckler alike against the organized corruption of Mammon and the militant insanity of agrarianism, forbidding a second irrepressible conflict, forbidding the threatened collision between capital and labor, forbidding in the name of the constitution which assures uniformity of laws in the name of the government which, whilst enforcing these laws, will mete out exact justice and compel equality of opportunity."

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Handy Eel

Said Mrs. Eel one morning: "Pray, don't forget those things; Remember first the crullers. And then the mullin rings.

"Be sure to stop at mamma's And get a jar of jam; Then swim down past the grocer's And buy a little ham.

"I'd like a dozen eggplants, A dozen onions, too; Of parsley get two bunches To put into the stew.

HE REACHED HOME WITH BUT TWO.

"Then come home past the butcher's And buy a beefsteak rare, A pound or two of cutlets, If you see good ones there."

She tied a string around him So he'd come home past the butcher's Which to the eel had clung, Because he had them nicely Upon his backlet strung.

They were the rings and crullers, Which to the eel had clung, Because he had them nicely Upon his backlet strung.

"My dear," he said, "don't send me In future for your things Unless each has a hole in Like these nice mullin rings."

A Pig Tale

Tommie Toddle's mamma was busy; that is why Tommie was sitting under the tree. Tommie was greedy and had just got his second bottle of milk and was yelling for more; that is why his mouth was so wide open and the tears running down his cheeks.

Some one had left the gate open, and that is why Mr. Hog appeared upon the scene. So busy was Tommie with his yelling that he did not see Mr. Hog until, with his nose close to Tommie's ear, he grunted "Ugh, ughugh!" Then he cried all the harder.

"What's the use of crying, little boy?" he said. "I never do—grunting's easier."

Tommie stopped short and started. "Do you know what you are liable to become," continued the hog, "if you keep up your greedy habits?"

"No, what?" asked Tommie, getting more used to his new friend.

"What is a little pig doing when he is eating too much?" said the pig, with a queer wink.

"Don't know," said Tommie.

"Making a hog of himself," grunted the pig.

"Do you think I'll get to be a hog too?" whined Tommie, for he was a least bit scared.

"I know it," continued his friend.

"Why, I have known hundreds of little boys and girls that began by being pigs and grew to be hogs."

"How dreadful!" said Tommie. "And what can I do about it?"

"Let me have your milk bottle, and you will grow to be a big boy, and then perhaps a man," said the pig, taking the bottle and drinking it dry.

Tommie looked at him sadly, for he wanted the milk.

"How about you?" he asked.

"Me?" said the pig. "Oh, don't worry about me. I shall always be a hog. Good day."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Almost Convinced.

"Do you believe in telepathy?" "Well, this morning a man paid me a hundred dollars he owed me, and this afternoon I got a letter from my wife asking for a hundred."—Life.

THE KITCHEN RANGE.

How to Economize on the Use of Coal-Building Fires.

One of the most fruitful sources of household waste and extravagance is the coal bin, and tons of fuel are used where a single one would give the same results. Open drafts and a range full to the covers of glowing coals not only burn a needless amount of coal, but burn out the range at the same time. A shovelful of coal or sufficient to lightly cover the fire will accomplish as much as a half shovelful, excepting in the increase of the coal man's trade.

For a small range nut coal is best; for a large one, small egg coal. Red ash coal makes a hotter fire, with fewer clinders, than the white ash, and the latter burns more slowly. For these reasons an equal mixture of the two is a wise economy. The ashes taken from the fire should never be thrown into the can until they are sifted. The clinders thus obtained can be used on the fire at times when the greatest heat is not needed. But they should always be added after the fresh coal is well aglow.

A third of a cupful of kerosene with which to saturate the kindling and coal before putting it in the range will facilitate the housemaid's morning work, whether or not the fire has been kept overnight. Kerosene should never, however, be poured directly into a stove, either from the cup or can. The best way is to lay the wood on a shovel and cover it there with the oil, and then add a sprinkling to a shovelful of coal. Many housekeepers insure their kitchens against accident from this cause by leaving a part of a cupful of oil for the servant's use and locking the rest in the storeroom.

A handful of sugar will revive an expiring fire as quickly as will kerosene, but happy the housewife whose maid is ignorant of the fact. This accounts in many cases for the rapid disappearance of the kitchen sugar supply.

How to Make Buckwheat Shortcake.

Take two cupfuls of nice sour milk (freshly churned) buttermilk is the best), add half a level teaspoonful of soda (more if the milk is very sour) and a level teaspoonful of salt. Add sufficient buckwheat flour to make a very stiff batter. Pour this into a buttered tin and bake immediately for about 30 minutes. Serve with butter and maple sirup.

How to Make Guinea Hen Pie.

Bone the guinea hen and rub well with pounded mace, allspice and pepper and salt (use a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of mixed spices). Then spread over a layer of forcemeat made by chopping two ounces of ham, one teaspoonful of parsley and the peel of half a lemon. Mince very fine a seasoning of salt, cayenne and butter all thoroughly together with six ounces of crumbs and two beaten eggs. Butter a raised pie mold and line with a stiff, short crust. Then spread with the forcemeat. Put in the guinea meat, packing it well in. Wet the edges, put on a cover of the paste, brush over with egg and bake four hours. In the meantime make a good, strong gravy from the bones, pour it through a funnel into the hole at the top, and the pie is ready for use.

How to Roast Clams.

Wash and scrub the clams. Put them on the broiler and over a clear fire. As they begin to open take them from the broiler and remove the upper shell. Pour over a little melted butter and serve with a quarter of a lemon. Add a little chopped parsley to the melted butter. Serve the clams very hot.

How to Tell Age of Horses.

The popular idea that the age of a horse can always be told by looking at his teeth, says a veterinary surgeon, is not entirely correct. After the eighth year the horse has no more new teeth, so that the tooth method is useless for telling the age of a horse which is more than 8 years old. As soon as the set of teeth is complete, however, a wrinkle begins to appear on the upper edge of the lower eyelid, and a new wrinkle is added each year, so that to get at the age of a horse over 8 years old you must figure the teeth plus the wrinkles.

How to Broil Ham.

Cut some slices of ham a quarter of an inch thick, lay them in hot water for half an hour or give them a scalding in a pan over the fire. Then take them up and lay them on a gridiron over bright coals, then take the slices on a hot dish, butter them freely, sprinkle pepper over and serve.

How to Clean Cut Glass.

Cut glassware is both valuable and beautiful and should be carefully treated when cleaned. It should, in the first place, be washed in warm water to which have been added a few drops of that invaluable cleansing agent ammonia. Having thoroughly rinsed them, brush each piece separately with a soft brush dipped in whiting, and then, when the powder is washed off, polish the glasses, which should drain for a minute or two, with tissue paper, which puts on a splendid gloss.

How to Stew Carrots.

Scrape some carrots and boil till nearly cooked, place in a stewpan with one ounce of butter, a couple of small onions, minced fine; a little chopped parsley, with pepper and salt to taste. Simmer slowly for half an hour, then add some flour to thicken the gravy, squeeze over all a little lemon juice and serve.

How to Fry Eels.

After cleaning the eels well cut them in pieces two inches long. Wash them and wipe them dry. Roll them in wheat flour or rolled cracker and fry as other fish, in hot lard or beef dripping, salted. They should be browned all over and thoroughly done.
